Dear Parent/Carer

Re: Non-required work for Mathematics for 2022/2023

Over the first few weeks of term many pupils have approached members of the maths department to request extra work, in an effort to help them achieve and even exceed their targets in mathematics. As such, a decision has been made to set every child in the school some relevant extra tasks on mathswatch.

These tasks are non-required work and are therefore voluntary to complete. However, as a department we feel they would benefit your child greatly in terms of their attainment and progress and would like to ask for your help in encouraging them to attempt them over the coming year.

All tasks are relevant to topics previously taught and will be available to them until the end of the year. All tasks start with the letters NRW (non-required work) in the description so that pupils are not to confuse them with mandatory homework set by the class teacher. Over the next few days, class teachers will be discussing this with pupils so all will be aware of it and its potential importance to their progress.

Thank you for your continued support.

Yours sincerely

L. Jacques
